MAYOR GETS AIDE . . . Mayor Albert Isen received "local aide" from pretty Aide "Ginny" as he boarded the inaugural voyage of Torrance Transit System's "Orange Line" yesterday. Isen launched the new systems line of refurbished busses by breaking a bottle of orange juice over its "bow." The line will serve residents in getting to and from the Del Amo and South Bay Shopping Centers. (Press-Herald Photo)

Blame the Smog For Everything

SACRAMENTO - Hey, there, Mr. and Mrs. California! You may not be as old as you feel or Dad . . . if your wife wants to dye your hair "young again," like in the TV commercials, or she appears to have aged considerably since your wedding day, don't fret... blame the California smog.

If you used to look at everything through rose colored glasses and now you have trouble finding your bifocals . . . blame the California smog.

Or if you look at the young chicks in their mini skirts like a very old rooster . . . blame the California smog.

That is the advice of the scientists at the air and industrial hygiene laboratory of the state de-partment of Public Health. They say California's smog may be making the state's residents appear to grow older faster.

They put the blame for this acceleration of aging on ozone, a smog component. They say they have been able to isolate reactive, oxygen containing compounds from the lungs of rabbits exposed to smog concentrations of ozone. These compounds are formed when the inhaled ozone reacts with proteins or fats in the lung tissue.

Getting into the technical language, laboratory chief Peter K. Mueller said some of the newly formed compounds cross-link or join the long chains of unusual proteins found in the lungs of rabbits and men, and the protein chains become more rigid, less flexible, and in the case of the lung proteins, less elastic.

Since cross-linking appears to be one of the many changes which accompany natural aging, the influence is that breathing smog may speed the aging of Californians.

This will give you one more reason for not going out tonight, Dad. Just sit in your rocker . . . and blame the smog.
